

TRAVELING MEN AT JAMESTOWN TO-DAY

Five Thousand Delegates to Annual Convention Are Expected.

WELCOME BY GOV. SWANSON

Meeting Will Be in Norfolk, but Exposition Is Objective Point.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORFOLK, VA., June 16.—Uncounted hosts of delegates to the eighteenth annual convention of the Travelers Protective Association of America, which will meet in annual convention here to-morrow, have arrived in the city. These men, who keep the wheels of commerce lubricated, will endeavor to make this the biggest and most successful convention that the association has ever had. The convention will continue all the week. It is expected that the total number of delegates to it will number 5,000. Many diversions, such as excursions, sightseeing trips and musical entertainments, have been arranged for the visitors.

While the business meetings of the convention will be held in Norfolk, the Jamestown Exposition will command a good deal of the attention of the travelers, for on the grounds of the exposition they will have a building of their own, which all of them will desire to visit. That the building might be spic and span for the entertainment of the visitors, many of the local members of the T. P. A. were engaged in putting it to rights to-day.

The convention will be called to order to-morrow at 10 o'clock in Armory Hall, this city, by Thad. H. Howe, national president. The delegates will be welcomed to the State in an address by Governor Claude A. Swanson, and to the city by Mayor Riddick.

Colonel John S. Harwood, of Richmond, will welcome the visitors on behalf of the State division of the association.

MR. BARR TAKING HOLD.

Will Start Many Reforms at the Jamestown Exposition.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NORFOLK, VA., June 16.—The advent of James M. Barr into the management of the Jamestown Exposition is already being followed by the institution of economic policies, reforms and progressive measures. Wherever improvement is possible the effects of the new power are being felt. This is true of the working force of the exposition, as well as in the physical operations on the Exposition Grounds.

The machinery of the big show, it is expected, will run without a hitch under the guiding hand of Mr. Barr.

The Victor Hugo Sails.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORFOLK, VA., June 16.—The cruiser Victor Hugo, one of the vessels which represented France at the Jamestown Exposition, International fleet, left for sea at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

EAGER TO PRACTICE.

Sixty-nine Young Lawyers Have Filed Applications With Clerk.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WYTHEVILLE, VA., June 16.—Sixty-nine young lawyers have filed their applications with the clerk of the Supreme Court of Appeals by students desiring to take the law examination on the 21st.

Mrs. Robert Grey, after spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs. Virginia P. Kent, left Friday for Norfolk.

Mr. I. Norment Powell, of Johnson City, was in town this week.

Professor A. L. Merrill left on Monday for Williamsburg.

Mrs. Robert Sayre returned Saturday from a visit to her mother, Mrs. John H. Gay, of Richmond.

Bessie Whittle, of Martinsville, and Miss Jessie Gibbons, of New Orleans, are the guests of Miss Jane Gibbons.

Mrs. W. B. Coleman, Mrs. Legrand Grumm and children, of New Orleans, are spending the summer at Colonel W. O. Moore's.

Mrs. William Todd De Van and Mrs. Edna De Van have returned from Philadelphia, and will spend the summer at their residence, "Sunny Crest."

Mrs. Frank Goodwin and Miss Laeta Goodwin arrived Monday and are visiting relatives here.

Mrs. T. W. Kent, who has been visiting Mrs. W. S. More for a few days, left Wednesday for Chicago.

Mrs. Treadway Gravelly, of Danville, is the guest of Mrs. William S. More.

Among visitors from here this week to the Jamestown Exposition were Mr. and Mrs. John Whitman, Mrs. E. W. Umbreger, Miss Maggie McNeill, Miss Sarah Kent and Miss Maggie Ribble.

SERMON BY DR. SMITH.

Commencement Begins at Virginia Military Institute at Lexington.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

LEXINGTON, VA., June 16.—The commencement exercises here at the Virginia Military Institute were held this morning by Rev. W. R. L. Smith, D. D., pastor of the Second Baptist Church, in Richmond, from the text, "Bear ye one another's burdens." The theme was "Christian Service," and the preacher eloquently emphasized the thought that no man lives unto himself, but his life is linked with that of his fellows. The music was led by a cadet choir, with several special selections by the V. M. I. orchestra.

On the platform, which was appropriately decorated with flowers and evergreens, were seated General Ship and members of the faculty and of the board of visitors. The exercises were held in Stonewall Jackson Memorial Hall, which was crowded with friends and visitors.

VALUABLE PORTRAIT.

Picture of Former Governor Holmes, of Mississippi, in Virginia Family.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

REIDSVILLE, VA., June 16.—The portrait of a former Governor of the State of Mississippi, visited Mr. Burwell McGuire, about a mile and a half from Berryville. His mission was to examine the old oil painting of Governor Holmes, the first Governor of Mississippi. The portrait is painted on a piece of mahogany, and is in good condition. It is much over a century old. It has been in the McGuire family for

A TRIED PRESCRIPTION.

A tried prescription, highly recommended by physicians for the relief of disorders of the kidneys and bladder, is composed of 4 oz. Fluid Extract of Buchu, 1/2 oz. Fluid Extract of Uva Ursi, 1 oz. Ament Cordial, 4 oz. Fluid Extract of Waterwort, and 15 oz. water. A dose of a tablespoonful of this is taken three times a day, and the continued use of the medicine for one month is calculated to drive from the system all the impurities which cause the disease. While the treatment continues the patient should drink as much water as possible. The ingredients of the prescription are all obtainable at any first-class drug store.

NOTED BLOCKADER IS CAUGHT AT LAST

Charles Price, Once a Convict, Arrested in North Carolina.

ELUDED OFFICERS OFTEN

Slipped Through Trap-Door and Then to Woods When They Came.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

RALEIGH, N. C., June 16.—Charles Price, a blockade distiller and escaped convict, was committed to jail this afternoon by United States Commissioner Nichols in default of $300 bond to await trial at the next term of the District Court for numerous recent offenses as a distiller.

Five years ago he was sent to the penitentiary for two years for blockading, and escaped from the Atlanta prison after serving fourteen months. He soon returned to his old haunts in Newlight township, this county, and began violating the revenue laws. He made his headquarters at the home of Mary S. Wallace, where it was found that he had a trap-door fixed through which he could slip under the floor and thence to the woods when a person about whom there was a suspicion of being an officer appeared. Finally, Commissioner Nichols was informed that he would be blowing in a certain place near the railroad yesterday, and an officer was sent, then he could be captured. Deputy United States Marshal Jordan went with the warrant, charging illicit distilling in several recent instances, and found him.

Along with him the officer brought Mary Wallace, the woman whose home has been the headquarters of Price, but finding that she was a widow and had several small children, Commissioner Nichols released her. It appeared that her house had been used also for storing the illicit whiskey made by Price.

GOES TO VISIT SHAW.

Dr. Henderson, of Carolina University, Will Be London's Pleasure.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) CHAPEL HILL, N. C., June 16.—Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the faculty of the University of North Carolina, has recently called on London, Eng., where he goes at the special invitation of Bernard Shaw, the noted Irish novelist and playwright. Dr. Henderson has been a close student of the works of Ibsen and Shaw, and has written a number of criticisms, which have elicited much favorable comment, on their works.

In the Arena and other of the first-class periodicals, and Dr. Henderson has now in course of preparation another, which is to be published shortly.

Mr. Shaw, in the vast amount of comment on his works, was struck by the force and ability of the critiques by Dr. Henderson, and wrote to him some time ago a highly appreciative letter. Some ten days ago this was followed by a cablegram inviting Dr. Henderson to London as Mr. Shaw's guest.

Although Dr. Henderson had expected to teach in two summer terms during the summer, he cancelled his engagements and sailed immediately. He had a good fortune to secure passage on the same ship with Mark Twain.

RECEIVER FOR TOXAWAY.

Does Not affect Hotels, Which Are Being Operated as Usual.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 16.—On application of Attorney J. C. Martin, representing numerous creditors, Judge Fred. Moore yesterday placed the defunct Toxaway Hotel Company, a Georgia corporation, which formerly leased and operated the string of hotels owned by the Toxaway company, in the hands of George H. Wright, of this city, receiver.

Mr. Wright will go to Lake Toxaway to-morrow to take charge of any valuable property which may be there.

The receivership does not affect the hotels owned by the Toxaway Company, which have been leased to, and are being operated by other parties.

Walker-Newton.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

MONTROSS, VA., June 16.—Cards are out announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Jane Blake Newton, of Hague, Westmoreland county, to William G. Walker, of this place. The ceremony will take place in Copel chapel at Hague, Wednesday, June 26th.

METHODISTS PLAN WESLEY MEMORIAL

Great Meeting in Atlanta to Provide the Necessary Funds.

ATLANTA, GA., June 16.—The seven bishops composing the Episcopal College of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, occupied the pulpits of Atlanta's principal Methodist churches to-day to inaugurate the movement for a great Wesley memorial to be located in Atlanta, to be constructed by the church in Georgia. At the morning services, subscriptions amounting to $200,000 were made, the largest individual amount being $75,000 by Asa G. Chandler, of Atlanta.

At a mass-meeting this afternoon, at which all the bishops and ministers of the church in the city, were present, these subscriptions were announced amid great enthusiasm. The attending bishops were both Wm. A. Williams, Tenn.; C. B. Galloway, Jacksonville, Fla.; James Atkins, Waynesville, N. C.; J. S. Key, Sherman, Tex.; W. A. Chandler, Atlanta; E. R. Hendrix, Kansas City, Mo.; and H. C. Morrison, New Orleans, La.

The Wesley memorial, which enterprise represents a great institutional church work, the first of its kind in the South. In addition to a large auditorium and church located on the present site of the Wesley Memorial Tabernacle, the group of buildings will include a hospital, nurses' home, boarding-house for young men, another for young women, reading-rooms, editorial office of the Wesley Advocate, gymnasium and other places for holding amusements. Executive offices have been opened here and the work will be pushed to rapid completion.

Excursion

To Nova Scotia, Cape Breton, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Via Plant Line Steamship. Apply to E. H. BOWMAN, 808 E. Main Street.

ATTRACTIVE CHURCH SOON TO BE FORMALLY DEDICATED

Woodstock M. E. Church.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WOODSTOCK, VA., June 16.—The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Woodstock, will be dedicated on June 23d, the fourth Sunday of this month. Rev. Collins Denny, D. D., of Nashville, Tenn., will preach the dedicatory sermon.

This church, which was completed last fall, has cost about $15,000, and stands upon the site occupied by the old edifice.

TO PROTECT MINERS FROM SUDDEN DEATH

Government Preparing to Make Life More Secure in Coal Regions.

TO HAVE EXPERIMENT MADE

Death Roll in West Virginia Alone Demands New System.

BY WALTER EDWARD HARRIS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16.—The Geological Survey experts of the fuel division propose to undertake a series of experiments with a view to putting an end to the appalling loss of life in coal mines. The plans for an experiment station, unique in civil life in this country, and only approximately paralleled by army and navy investigators, have been prepared. At this station tests of powder, dynamite, nitro-glycerine, and other high explosives of various kinds, will be hurried into a large boiler plate cylinder, filled with gas, and the effects will be carefully noted. If ignition of the gas falls after these various tests, the explosives used will be known as "permissible explosives," and mine owners will be urged to use them.

In addition to these experiments, others in rescue work will be conducted in a miniature mine in one part of the station. It is said that in many mine disasters, hundreds of lives could be saved were it only possible for rescuers to enter immediately after the accidents. The deadly fire-damp holds back those who would save their comrades imprisoned in the shafts and drifts.

The government experts have collected appalling figures, showing the death rate in coal mines. In West Virginia alone, in the month of January, 1907, 103 miners lost their lives in one explosion. From the 6th of March, 1906, to May 1, 1907, no less than 315 men lost their lives in eight explosions in the coal mines of West Virginia. Of course, the total number of men killed in the mines of the State in that period was much greater.

Death Roll in Pennsylvania.

The total death roll of the mines of Pennsylvania for the year 1906, which 250 died as the result of explosions of gas or dust. It is the object of the experts of the geological survey to reduce these accidents to the minimum, according to Dr. J. A. Holmes, chief of the Fuel Testing Bureau.

Dr. Holmes says that their investigations thus far have revealed the fact that the United States is behind Europe in the matter of safeguarding the lives of miners. England and Belgium have for years conducted experiments for the purpose of safeguarding the lives of miners, and the findings have been of great advantage to mine operators, who have applied them in the protection of human life.

In England there are a number of "permissible" explosives, and these may be used by miners in blasting coal and nothing else. They also have in England what is known as the "limit charge," which must not be exceeded on pain of severe penalty. In many States there are no regulations regarding the kind of powder to be used, and the size of the charge which may be employed. The regulations in such States as have them are very few.

The results of experiments in Germany show conclusively that the majority of the worst accidents come from the explosion of gas or coal dust. Many arise from the latter. The worse explosion in German mines for years was the one at the Redden mines, where nearly 200 lives were lost. The explosion resulted from gas ignited. The accident at the Courrières mines at Lens, France, in March of last year, resulting in the loss of 1,300 lives, was probably due to coal dust.

Natural Gas for Test.

But to return to the projected experiment station. It will probably be located somewhere in the Pittsburgh district, so that natural gas may be used for testing purposes. It is the purpose of the projectors to build a great cylinder or boiler plate, 100 feet long and 6 feet in diameter, lying on the ground.

An explosive mixture of fire and air in one case, and coal dust and air in another will be pumped into the cylinder, and the explosive to be tested will be shot into it from one end by means of a big steel mortar, so that the flame and products of combustion will pass into the kind of powder to be tested. The gas will be pumped into the cylinder through the top of the cylinder so that when there is an explosion these will fly open and prevent the destruction of the cylinders. Along the side will be a series of portholes, covered with glass half an inch thick, through which those in the observation-house may watch the effects of the explosion. The observation-house will be sixty feet away, and the mortar which will hurl the explosive will be fired by electricity from the house, in which will be the officials testing the material and invited operators and miners.

In order that the effect of the explosions, if there are any, may be fully observed, a piece of oil paper will be placed across the face of one of the

PRETTY ROMANCE ENDED SUDDENLY

How Miss Skinner and Bronson-Howard Happened to Meet.

NORFOLK GIRL CHARMED HIM

Courtship Began in Baltimore, Then the Wedding—Parted Now.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

BALTIMORE, June 16.—It was at a matinee performance in the latter part of February, at Albaugh's, with Miss Rose Coghlan as the star, that Mr. Howard first saw Miss Skinner, and it was a case of love at first sight. From the moment of their introduction he paid her assiduous court.

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly after the curtain had gone up Miss Skinner remembered a letter she had written to her mother, but had forgotten to mail. Her escort offered to mail it, and as he was going to the street in search of a letter-box that Mr. Howard found his seat in the next box. When Miss Skinner's escort returned, he found Mr. Howard standing at the rear of the boxes. After

Miss Skinner had gone to Albaugh's with a friend, who also knew Mr. Howard. They occupied seats in a box, and shortly